FACULTY LEARNING COMMUNITY PROGRAM GOALS AND OUTCOMES

GOAL I: OFFER OPPORTUNITIES FOR NEW FACULTY TO PARTICIPATE IN THE CULTURE OF INQUIRY

By including, but not limited to

A. Providing opportunities for focused inquiry.
B. Explaining the learning outcomes and assessment cycle as practiced at Cañada.
C. Providing new faculty with forums to discuss the development of a learning syllabus and grading rubrics.
D. Demonstrating how faculty conduct the program review process.

FACULTY OUTCOME: Faculty will identify ways to address differing learning styles, theories of brain-based learning, principles of learning-centered teaching and goals of information literacy in their classes. They will incorporate at least one of these areas into their courses through a written assignment, adapted lesson plan, changes in course syllabus...

ACTIVITIES

- This resource is a 37-page “Self-Directed Guide for Designing Courses for Significant Learning.” (click to download) This is intended as a “do it yourself handbook.” It introduces each major step and then provides a workshop for applying that step to the design of a course. It is also frequently used as a pre-workshop reading assignment. By reading the text (they don’t need to do the application exercises for this purpose), they get an initial overview of the basic ideas. This allows the workshop leader to spend more workshop time on application exercises.

![Image of Figure 1 Taxonomy of Significant Learning]

- Using irburic.com create a rubric for the assignments in your class.
- Meet with one of the faculty who teach in one of the college Learning Communities and observe the class.
• Attend one of the Focused Inquiry Network workshops

RESOURCES

Grade Keeping: Keeping grades electronically can result in more accurate and efficient recording of student work. Once you have carefully considered your grading scheme, enter your preferences into the grading program. Then, enter the assignments and the students' scores. The program does the calculations for you. Fast and easy grade reports can be created, displayed on the web and printed for the entire class - saving you time.

Effectiveness of Dual-Delivery Mode Using CCC Confer

Amelito Enriquez, Engineering

WHAT I DID: Used CCC Confer to deliver lecture simultaneously to face-to-face students and online students. Recorded and archived audio and video of lectures.

WHY: Initially, to increase enrollment in courses; face-to-face class is too small.

Technology Implementation

No special software or hardware needed.

I use “Teach and Confer” and “Office Hours”. They work exactly the same way.

There are only three buttons I click:
1. Turn on microphone
2. Share desktop
3. Record.

I even ask students to remind me every meeting!

Impact on Teaching

• I now use CCC Confer for all my lectures. I do not need to upload lectures. CCC Confer automatically archives when you record.
• Almost all online and face-to-face students review archives regularly.
• I am less worried about classes being cancelled due to low enrollment.

Drawbacks:
• Slightly more on-campus students miss lectures.
• I have to watch everything I say now; there is a permanent public record of it!

Impact on Student Learning

Circuits

Retention  Success  HW Ave  Test Ave  Final Exam  Final Grade

Online  On-campus

No statistically significant difference in retention, success, and performance of online and face-to-face students despite favorable demographics for face-to-face class (more EE majors; more students taking lab class concurrently.)

How did online students perform so well without “attending” lectures?

They download and review archived lectures!!
