Immigration Tips on Traveling during the Winter Break

If you are planning on traveling overseas during the winter break, here are a few things to remember to make sure you are able to re-enter the U.S.

1. Make sure that the travel signature on the bottom of the last page of your I-20 is signed and dated within the last 6 months by Mario or Supinda.

2. Make sure that your F-1 visa stamp in your passport is valid. If it is expired or you do not have an F-1 visa stamp in your passport, you must schedule a visa appointment at the U.S. embassy in your home country to apply for an F-1 visa. You must bring your I-20, official Cañada College transcript and financial documents showing funds for your stay in the U.S.

3. If you are not traveling to your home country and visiting another country overseas, make sure you have a tourist visa from that country, if needed.

Volunteer at the International Student Orientation

New International Student Orientation is on January 3rd and 4th. All new students and students who have never attended an international student orientation are welcome to participate. For a detailed schedule, please email Supinda at sirihekaphongs@smccd.edu.

We are looking for current students to help us welcome new students on campus. Volunteers will participate in a welcome lunch and campus tour on January 3 at 12pm and a tour and a movie/mini-golf/mall in Redwood City on January 4 at 3pm.

Volunteers will receive free lunch and all expenses will be paid for. If you are interested in volunteering, please email Supinda at sirihekaphongs@smccd.edu by Friday, December 21.

What was CIUS staff’s greatest achievement this semester?

“I try to keep active and healthy throughout the year by doing yoga and hiking but my greatest athletic achievement this semester is completing the Warrior Dash. The obstacles were really hard like crawling through a mud pit and climbing a waterfall of mud but it was really fun and I got a medal for finishing the race.”

-Supinda Sirihekaphong

“My greatest achievement this semester was helping my wife become a U.S. citizen. My wife is from Mexico. She came to the U.S. on a fiancée visa, then became a permanent resident, and is now a U.S. citizen. It was a seven year long process, but through hard work, some good luck, and a lot of studying she earned her citizenship!”

-Mario Mihelcic

Election 2012 from an Arabic Point of View

By Noof A. from the United Arab Emirates

When I recall my Arabic childhood days, my mother used to enlighten my siblings and I with mythical stories of unfolding wisdom and knowledge. I dreamt about the Phoenix many times, putting myself together and embarking into the world full of life and power. Since the signing of the Declaration of Independence in 1776, the U.S. represented the Phoenix of the world, building itself from within itself to become the greatest democracy of our time.

2008 definitely made history with the election of a Black President. It was a revelation as I call it, in which anyone even from the most humble circumstances can build their way up to take on the greatest responsibilities of the U.S. Today the entire world, especially the Arab world, watches closely a tough competition between the odds; the Black President Barak Obama and the Mormon Governor Mitt Romney.

Citizens of the U.S. are on edge and on the other half of the world, we are also looking deeply into this election, as we do every four years. With the recent Arab Spring revolution, we worry about the democratic country that led us to revolt passionately in the first place.

After World War II, we cared about who lived in the White House. During that time our relationship with the British was falling apart and we needed a new friend (non-European) supporting our position in negotiations. This interest in the U.S. doubled after the Palestinian ‘Nakba’ and the emergence of Jewish internal political power within the U.S. and of course, during the Arab Spring revolution that swept over the Middle East.

The Arab world is worried not only because the U.S. is moving from being the greatest power to a great power, but also because the new administration will shape new foreign policy. The new administration has to deal with “Islamic” governments--a Middle East that is not like the one from the past decades.

Mexico’s Day of the Dead Tradition
From http://latino.si.edu/dayofthedead/
Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) is a festival celebrated on November 2nd by people in Mexico, parts of Central and South America, and increasingly throughout the U.S.

Day of the Dead is not a sad or scary occasion, but a spirited holiday when people remember and honor family members who have died. All of this is part of the philosophy that death is not something to be feared.

People celebrate in their homes, by creating altars (called ofrendas in Spanish) that display portraits, favorite foods, and special possessions of their loved ones. Altars are also decorated with candles and marigolds—the light of the candle and scent of the flowers (called cempasuchitl) are said to attract the souls of the deceased and draw them back for a short time to take part in the pleasures they once enjoyed in life.

Families also visit the graves of their loved ones, cleaning the headstones, decorating with flowers, and bringing food and music.

Many of the symbols and practices are derived from the Mayans and Aztecs. Images of skeletons dancing or doing other comical things are common.

Thanksgiving: An American Holiday
From www.history.com
In 1621, colonists and Native American Indians shared an autumn harvest feast that is acknowledged today as one of the first Thanksgivings. For more than two centuries, days of thanksgiving were celebrated by individual states. It wasn’t until 1863, during the Civil War, that President Lincoln proclaimed a national Thanksgiving Day.

In many American households, Thanksgiving now centers on sharing a bountiful meal with family and friends. Turkey, a Thanksgiving staple has become all but synonymous with the holiday. Other traditional foods include stuffing, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie. Volunteering is a common Thanksgiving Day activity, and food drives and free dinners are usually provided for the less fortunate.

Parades have also become a part of the holiday. Since 1924, Macy’s department store has hosted New York City’s Thanksgiving Day parade, which attracts 2 to 3 million spectators along its 2.5-mile route. It typically features marching bands and giant balloons shaped like cartoons.
“O’zapft is!”: the Truth About Oktoberfest
By Rosa Erhardt from Germany

All Germans love beer and sauerkraut and wait all year for October, when they make their way to Munich to drink as much beer as they can stand. Sound familiar? I have heard different versions of this, none of which come close to reality. So what’s the truth about Oktoberfest?

Oktoberfest is a traditional festival celebrated annually in the southern part of Germany, more specifically in Bavaria. It is a tradition in Munich and has grown into a huge event and known all over the world. The first Oktoberfest was held in 1810 to celebrate the wedding of Crown Prince Ludwig and Princess Therese, but even before then it was common in Munich to organize fairs at the end of September to empty last season’s beer storage and make room for the new draft beer. These fairs offered food, entertainment, and of course beer.

Over the years the festivities have grown in size and popularity. Today more than 6 million people from all over the world attend Oktoberfest in Munich. On the first day at noon, the mayor taps the first barrel of beer starting the festivities with the words “o’zapft is” (the beer is tapped). It is not tradition, but still very popular to wear “tracht” (dirndl or lederhosen). Contrary to popular belief “tracht” is a costume in Bavaria only, different regions have different traditional costumes. These days this old tradition, and originally happy occasion, gets quite a bit of negative press. Of the millions of attendees, many consume alcohol excessively, causing tempers to rise, and then need medical assistance.

In conclusion, Oktoberfest looks back on a long history and promises to grow bigger each year. It attracts millions of people and brings together many different nationalities. I myself have never been to Oktoberfest and the same is true for many Germans. Yet no matter how much negative press accompanies Oktoberfest, it is a huge gathering of people, who come together to enjoy life, feast like a prince, and, yes, drink beer.
Employment Workshop for F-1 International Students

Our office collaborated with Bob Haick in the Career Center and Prof. Anne Nicholls, coordinator of Cooperative Education, to help international students understand employment options and U.S. business etiquette. If you were unable to attend, here’s what you missed.

International students on F-1 immigration status are eligible to work within strict immigration limitations as listed below. All employment is limited to 20 hours per week during the semester (students may work more than 20 hours per week during semester breaks):

On-campus employment: International students are eligible to work on campus but are not eligible for student worker positions that are funded by the U.S. government. Only positions funded by Cañada or SMCCCD are open to all students regardless of immigration status. Students can work for any Cañada College office, department, division, or auxiliary services including the bookstore and dining services. Students can also work at any San Mateo County Community College District (SMCCCD) office.

Curricular Practical Training (CPT): After completing two semesters, students may apply for employment authorization for a paid internship under CPT. Students must have an employment offer within their field of study, register for Cooperative Education credits, and submit copies of Cooperative Education paperwork to our office. Students cannot start working until they receive an updated I-20 with CPT employment authorization.

Optional Practical Training (OPT): After completing an associate’s degree, international students are eligible to request employment authorization under OPT for up to 12 months from USCIS. Our office can help you submit an application which includes a $380 fee. If you are in your final semester, please contact our office for details about the application process. Employment must be within your field of study and the application takes up to 90 days.

Severe Economic Hardship: If you are facing severe economic hardship, you may apply for off-campus employment authorization for up to 12 months from USCIS. The application takes up to 90 days and has a $380 fee.

You must be able to document unforeseen economic hardship, such as natural disaster, change of sponsor’s income, and currency devaluation. Please contact our office for assistance with the application process.

The Career Center is now located in The Grove and offers a wide range of resources such as resume building software, internship listings, and career exploration guides. Bob Haick also has a schedule of resume-building, cover letter, and internship workshops throughout the semester.

Attend next semester’s Employment Workshop to learn more about U.S. business culture so that you are prepared for your first day of work in the U.S.
ICC Members Taste the World
By Auralyn “Lyn” Ancheta from the Philippines

On Saturday, September 29th, members of the International Communication Club attended the 6th annual St. Thomas More Church International Food Festival held in South San Francisco. After driving through sunny San Mateo County, we were met with chilly and foggy weather. We thought that there would be more selections of different food stands but we still enjoyed the food. Some students had a gyro, a burrito-like food from the Mediterranean. We also had a dessert from Greece called baklava that was filled with nuts and honey. We also bought a sweet and crunchy fruit called jujube (nope, it’s not the one you see in cosmetic products, that one is called ‘jojoba’). Supinda, the club advisor had a yummy deep-fried pastel stuffed with cheese and beef from Brazil. We also had Filipino food including shanghai spring rolls, beef kebabs, and my favorite Filipino dessert, halo halo.

“Mix Mix” Filipino Dessert

By Auralyn “Lyn” Ancheta
My favorite Filipino dessert is halo-halo, which literally means ‘mix-mix’. It is similar to patbingsu from South Korea, ais kacang from Malaysia, and es campur from Indonesia.

Ingredients:
- 2 tbsp palm nuts
- 2 tbsp coconut jelly
- 2 tbsp grated cantaloupe
- 2 tbsp caramelized plantains
- 2 tbsp jackfruit
- Shaved ice
- Evaporated milk

Optional Ingredients:
- 1 tbsp purple yam
- 1 tbsp sweetened red beans
- some diced mango
- custard(flan)
- ube (purple yam) ice cream

1. In a glass bowl, layer the ingredients and top it with shaved ice.
2. Pour the evaporated milk on top. Add the optional ingredients on top of the shaved ice.
3. Before you eat halo-halo, mix well (halo-halo) and enjoy!

China’s Mid-Autumn Festival & Moon Cake

By Meiyi “Cassie” Gong, President of the International Communication Club

On Wednesday, September 26, the I made a presentation about China’s Mid-Autumn Festival and Confucius in honor of his birthday on September 28th. Confucius is perhaps the most famous Chinese in the world. In Confucius philosophy, there are five principles on how to conduct oneself well and how nations should act, as well. These five doctrines are Ren (compassion & benevolence), Yi (righteousness & brotherhood), Li (manners & rules), Zhi (wisdom & intelligence) and Xin (honesty & trust). People should be honest, trust each other, care about each other, and accumulate knowledge to build better character and a more cohesive country within a set of appropriate rules and manners.

Members of the club learned how to write the five principles in Chinese characters and their writings are displayed in the International Student Lounge in Building 5, Room 228.

I also explained that September 30th is the Mid-Autumn Festival, one of the most significant and traditional festivals in Chinese culture. Chinese people celebrate this special day in memory of a kind and beautiful woman named Chang E who sacrificed herself to save her countrymen from evil thousands of years ago. The Mid-Autumn Festival is celebrated during a full moon. It is a tradition for family members to get together for dinner, usually at a round table, just like the full moon. Members of the club also had a taste of traditional moon cake with red bean, pineapple, and chestnut stuffing.

Croatia’s BBQ: Kotlovina
By Mario Mihelcic
Kotlovina is a specialty dish from areas surrounding the capital city of Zagreb. My uncle makes it whenever we have a family gathering. It’s our version of an American BBQ. It is prepared in a special pan with a wide rim around the outer edge and a concave center to contain the juices. Here is the recipe, which takes about 35 minutes to cook.

- 10 (1/2-inch) boneless pork loin chops or 10 chicken breast halves
- 1 chopped onion
- 2 sliced carrots
- 1 sliced celery rib
- 3-4 cloves chopped garlic
- 4 red and green sliced peppers
- 1 (28-ounce) can undrained diced tomatoes
- 3 cups dry white wine
- Salt and pepper
- Oil for cooking

1. In a kotlovina pan or large wok, add oil and allow to get hot. Brown meat and then push it to edge of the pan.
2. While meat continues to cook on the edge, add onions, carrots, celery and garlic to center of the pan. When the onions are translucent, but not fully cooked, place the meat on the vegetables, add 1 cup wine and cook for about 15 minutes, adding a little water as necessary.
3. While that is cooking, put the red and green peppers on the rim of the pan and allow to soften slightly. Then, push the meat mixture to the rim of the pan and move the peppers to the center with the rest of the vegetables.
4. Now add the parboiled potatoes to the center of pan along with the peppers. Add another cup of wine and about 1 cup water to the center. Stir carefully and cook for about 10 minutes, until the potatoes are softened. Add diced tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste. Bring the meat into the center and cook for another 10 minutes.
5. Just before serving, add the last cup of wine and allow to heat for about 3 minutes. To serve, place vegetables on a large serving dish and place the meat on top.

Traditional Folk Costumes of Jalisco, Mexico

By Laura Guadarrama, Fashion Design Major from Mexico

Traditional folk costumes from around the world turn into runway and street trends periodically in the fashion world. Since Cañada College’s “Artistry in Fashion” event is coming up, I would like to share a simple description of the traditional folkloric costumes of Guadalajara, Jalisco, affectionately called “Perla Tapatia.”

First, we begin with the women’s costume, which is commonly a one-piece dress. Underneath, an ankle-length white petticoat helps provide volume. The dress is composed of a voluminously pleated long skirt in bright colors; the bottom is adorned with ribbons also in bright colors that contrast with the main fabric. The bottom is meant to open and flare up impressively with the vigorous twirls and turns of the traditional danza folklórica. The outfit is usually long-sleeved with a high neck. The neck and wrists of the dress are decorated with a white lacy fabric and colorful ribbons. All together these elements highlight the beauty of the gorgeous women of Jalisco.

The men’s beautiful Charro apparel, avowed all over the world as the Mariachi outfit, is much more than just that; it is a staple of the endearing culture of Mexico’s Occidental Pearl. This 2-3 piece suit, with its intricate embroidery patterns and heavy studs, is related to strong and manly men.

I hope that these two beautiful and contrasting outfits inspire you and remind us that fashion is more than just trends, is a vehicle of cultural expression.
President James Keller’s Address at the Inaugural Convocation Ceremony

Good Afternoon.

I am honored to welcome the board of trustees, the chancellor, vice chancellors, community leaders, and visitors. Welcome Cañada faculty and staff. Welcome incoming Cañada students.

This convocation marks the beginning of Cañada’s 45th academic year. For Cañada students, it is a beginning of your life of academic pursuits in higher education. It is a time to make a serious commitment to academic excellence.

Commit to achieving a purposeful academic goal: to completing a technical certificate, a degree, or the course of study necessary to transfer to a four-year institution.

You have made the important decision to seek your academic goals at Cañada College. I know you will make the commitment to excellence. Cañada College is your resource to reach your goals. Take the time to explore and learn about the abundant resources that are here at Cañada and in the communities that the college serves to assist you in your academic pursuits.

Aim high, reach far, explore and develop high expectations for yourself. Use the human, physical, and technical resources of Cañada well and often. Faculty, staff, counselors, tutors, and fellow students are ready and anxious to commit to your continued success as a Cañada student. There will be few times and places in your life when and where you will find in one place so many who can help you along your academic journey.

I know that many of you have traveled across some incredible life paths to get here. Your story of that passage is an important one. That journey and the one you create at Cañada will contribute to your personal legacy of achievement.

As you progress in your studies, not only take time for classes and programs to propel you through life, to make good grades; take time to REFLECT along your academic journey on what the experience of each milestone means to you, to your future, and to others. REFLECT, then:

Write it down. Keep it near you. Look at it periodically through life. Share it with others.

Your personal story of achievement will be rewarding to you, your family, your friends, and will be an inspiration to others.

You are a Cañada College student. It is the time to:

COMMIT to academic excellence.
CREATE a legacy of achievement.
REFLECT along your academic journey.
SHARE your thoughts and experience with others.

Thank you and welcome to Cañada College.

“What clubs did you sign up for during Club Rush?”
Welcome from the CIUS Director

Dear international students,

Congratulations on choosing to come to or return to Cañada College to continue your studies. Cañada provides a rich and supportive environment in which to meet your academic goals. And we at the Center for International and University Studies (CIUS) are here to support you in reaching those goals.

We have had the chance to meet most of you already face-to-face, and look forward to meeting the rest of you soon. Please be sure to contact us by phone or email or just stop by the office in building 5, room 229, if we can do anything to help you get settled in.

I know you will be busy at the start of the semester adjusting to your new classes and learning environment. But also try to participate in extracurricular activities here. The campus offers many opportunities to meet other students and to engage in meaningful projects outside of class. We have an awesome International Communications Club that I hope you will join. In future newsletters, we will share more news about that club and other activities at the college.

But for now I just want to extend to you another warm welcome from all of us at Cañada’s CIUS, and to remind you that our doors are open. Come by and see us if you need anything or just to say hello and tell us how you are doing.

Lucy Salcido Carter

Cañada College Welcomes New International Students from All Across the Globe

Cañada College welcomes 28 new international students on campus this semester, with 48 international students from 26 countries in total.

The 3-day International Student Orientation kicked off with a Welcome Luncheon on Tuesday, July 24. President Jim Keller welcomed students as did CIUS staff, Carla Stoner-Brito from the Counseling Center, and Meiyi “Cassie” Gong, the president of the International Communications Club. The students also played Get-to-know-you Bingo and won gift cards from Yoppi Yogurt.

The next day, students were busy meeting counselors to discuss classes and toured the Learning Center and the library. Mario also gave an informative WebSmart and My.SMCCCD workshop.

The last day of orientation included presentations from ESL Professor Jeanne Gross about the U.S. educational system. Supinda and Mario discussed international student rights and responsibilities and finally, Cynthia Frias-Baisch, Krystal Johnson, Regina Blok, and Maria Olearczyk talked about staying healthy and dealing with culture shock.

The orientation ended with a tour of downtown Redwood City where some students had a burrito for the first time at Chipotle and watched The Amazing Spiderman.

Dominique Chainee from South Africa said, “I was moved and engaged by the stories and information given to us. It is great to know that there is assistance and support from all sides at Cañada College. I got the opportunity to meet many new students from around the world. It was very exciting for me to get to know the new students I will embark on this new journey with.”

The CIUS staff would like to thank everyone who participated in welcoming our students and our student ambassadors, Dennis Jung, Guido Casoy, Marina Andrijevic, and Cassie Gong.
