Final Questions

How would your program be impacted if this position is not funded? *

All of the disciplines within the Social Sciences are either 1 or 2 full-time faculty departments. All of the departmental responsibilities and workload fall on these extremely small departments. The coordinator position supports the faculty and students within the Social Sciences and further provides opportunities to enrich the college experience of all students at the college and campus at large. If the position was not continued it would be in direct opposition to needs expressed in the program review narratives of six disciplines and would directly negatively impact all of the Social Sciences faculty and students. Given our departmental responsibility and workload and small departments, we would no longer be able to offer additional enriching experiences such as Social Science events and speakers, we would be unable to collaborate on addressing equity gaps, program assessment, addressing issues of enrollment, along with many other areas outside of basic duties and responsibilities of instructors as outlined in our contract. As is repeatedly mentioned in many of the program reviews in the Social Sciences it is already difficulty to meet our basic duties with such small departments and without the coordinator role that would be made even more difficult as our faculty strive not just to meet the minimum requirements but provide an academic environment that allows our students to thrive.

Anything else you would like us to know? For example, awards, recognition from the community, student highlights, etc.

Comment or Explanation:

The social sciences coordinator is extremely useful in helping to bring together the various disciplines. These are mostly single person departments--and the social sciences coordinator helps organize them across disciplines.
